Special Editorial: Wings

Last week, on March 20, Tan Jian Ci presented fans with the single 《宠 ONE》. On March 22, he also released a vlog of the recording process, revealing his involvement in the songwriting and his personal connection to it — which we subtitled and shared here on Instagram last Tuesday.

The lyrics, presented below, are both intimate and expansive, reflecting a journey shaped alongside those who have always been there, and how hardship became a force of transformation — the quiet making of wings.

In 《宠 ONE》, there is no denial of what time does to us — it weighs, it hardens, it distances. And yet, something emerges in silence: the choice to keep moving forward.

Not through force, but through creation.

To grow wings is not to escape, but to endure differently. To cross distances that cannot be shortened, only lived through. To remain, even as everything moves.

Perhaps this is what permanence means — not stillness, but the courage to continue, light enough to rise, like an angel...

《宠 ONE》

In every lonely night,
I have a “you.”
Whispering to myself under the moonlight,
only you are listening.

You alone hold my memories,
the one from the stories.
Somehow, without you even realizing it,
you drive away all my worries.

Every day turns from cloudy to clear,
yet I grow more anxious.
You always shine with a soft glow,
guiding me forward in the distance.

If one day you run toward me,
only then will I feel at ease.
Or maybe I'll be the one exhausting myself,
just to reach you.

You're there—
call your name,
and you respond quietly.
No need to explain, we understand.

In that moment,
the whole world seems to fade away,
leaving only you and me.
Time disappears into the horizon,
yet we never drift apart.

May the years pass without regret—
the reason you entered my life.
In others' eyes, you share the same name,
but to me, you are the star in my heart.

I gather my courage
to cross endless distances,
flying over countless miles,
through sharp winds,
spreading my wings.

Even if the world moves faster,
some things remain the same—
like traces left by time,
beautiful in their own way.

I call your name,
and you answer softly.
No need for words—we understand.
In that moment,
the world fades away,
leaving only you and me.

Time disappears into the horizon,
yet we never drift apart.
May the years pass without regret—
the reason you entered my life.
In others' eyes, it's just a shared name,

but to me, you are the brightest star.
Though time may bring a little regret...
